Training Sessions for Law Enforcement and First Responders

The rate of autism spectrum disorders (ASD) has grown to one in every 100 births. As law enforcement professionals and first responders, you are likely to come in contact with children and adults who have ASD. This training is designed so that professionals will come away with a good, practical understanding of effective approaches when interacting with individuals affected by autism. This training also offers a thorough review of current trends, tips, training options and tools that can help you implement instruction at your agency.

Dennis will feature video that illustrate autism related dispatches and scenarios that offer tips, options and special tactics designed to enhance communications and manage sensory influences that can cause behavioral outbursts.

This training will help law enforcement and first response agencies to:

- Increase officer, first responder and citizen safety
- Enhance communication and response skills
- Save valuable time and resources
- Avoid litigation
- Build community partnerships

This training is appropriate for:

- Patrol and investigative law enforcement professionals
- Fire-rescue and EMS professionals
- Law enforcement, fire-rescue and & EMS training officers
- School resource officers
- 911 telecommunications
- Crisis intervention Team (CIT) members
- Criminal and juvenile justice professionals
